1.1 SP shall publish the electronic product catalogue with the most current technical and Product Information that has been supplied by the Company. For purposes of this Agreement, "Product Information" shall mean and include all non-sensitive data that is commonly found as publicly available information describing the type, dimensions, weight, presence, materials, connection points, etc., of a product as well as the commercial code, short description and long description of the physical product. COMPANY retains all rights to the Product Information and Requested Material and its derivatives in the electronic catalog. As such COMPANY is responsible for the correctness and completeness of the disclosed data and represents and warrants that it has the right to provide the Product Information and Requested Material to SP for SP's provision of Services under this Agreement.

- 1.2 SP will create and publish an electronic catalogue of information using the Requested Material and Product Information so that all Company equipment is easily searchable and identified within the Specifi® platform. For purposes of this Agreement, "Requested Material" shall mean the most up-to-date publicly available price list for all designated equipment, technical data sheets with two dimensional representations of the equipment (plan, front, lateral, or DWG), technical information on connection points of equipment (electric, water, gas, drainage, etc.).
- 1.3 SP will organize all equipment into the Specifi® proprietary database format so the COMPANY Product Information is easily accessible in the Specifi® platform. SP will distribute all Company price list and Product Information including CAD and BIM symbols that have been designated by the Company through the Specifi® platform.
- 1.4 SP will provide COMPANY with one subscription to its Specifi® electronic catalog, from which the Company will be able to assess the quality, completeness and correctness of the electronic catalogue and create technical product marketing material.

The COMPANY shall provide SP with requested material and Product Information and shall designate a Technical Manager(s) to facilitate the transfer of Product Information under this Agreement. The Customer shall have the sole responsibility of notifying SP of changes to the Technical Manager contact information.
